YOUNG SOLDIERS TO PARADE HERE

One Thousand Sons of Veterans Reserves to be Under Canvas. Evening Events and a Large Parade through Gettysburg.

With a thousand men under canvas, dress parades in camp each evening and a parade and review in the streets of town during the week, the annual encampment of the Sons of Veterans' Reserves here in June promises to be one of the most attractive events of the coming summer. The reserves will have with them three or four good bands and the week will be a gay one. The camp will be located at the northwest edge of town between Lincoln and Broadway streets, Carlisle street and the Harrisburg road, with a few of the troops south of Lincoln street.

The reserves will open their camp on Sunday morning, June 22, coming into Gettysburg the day before, and continue under canvas for a week. The formal opening will occur with due ceremonies, and regular camp routine will follow immediately. Each evening there is dress parade and on Wednesday a parade through the town will occur, similar to the National Guard parade last year. While not so large the Sons of Veterans make a very creditable showing and those who have seen the parade at other encampments say that it is an exceptionally good event.

It is probable that either the Prep Campus or Nixon Field will be used for the evening parades.

Band concerts prove an enjoyable feature and the fact that the encampment of the Pennsylvania Division, Grand Army of the Republic, will in all probability be held here at the same time makes it likely that the week of June 22 will be a big one.

That the two organizations will arrange their programs so as to work together is probable. The Sons of Veterans will have a reception one evening at the Eagle Hotel, which will be headquarters for the civic body which does not go into camp. Another evening there will be a ball and the third evening the Sons of Veterans will likely join the Grand Army men in a camp fire. The band concerts will also add to the enjoyable end of the Grand Army encampment.

The civic body of the Sons of Veterans, which will meet here on June 25 and 26, will hold their sessions in Xavier Hall. About six hundred delegates are expected to attend this meeting, the program for which will be outlined later.

WINDY WEEK

Many Storms and Varying Temperatures for this Week.

Abnormal storm activity and marked fluctuations in temperature will prevail the country over during the coming week, according to the Weather Bureau experts.

"A storm central Sunday over the Rocky Mountain region," the bureau's weekly bulletin says, "will move rapidly northeast, accompanied by shifting gales; it will be preceded by rains and much warmer at the beginning of the week in the Eastern and Southern States and be attended by snows in the Northwestern States and along the Northern border. It will be followed by decidedly colder weather Monday and Tuesday over the Middle West and the Southwest and Tuesday and Wednesday generally east of the Mississippi river."

"Another disturbance of widespread influence will develop in the far West about Wednesday or Thursday, move eastward, attended by rain in Southern and probably snow in Northern districts, and cross the great central valleys Thursday or Friday and the Eastern States Friday or Saturday. A general change in considerably higher temperature will precede this disturbance."

FOR AUTO LINE

The Chambersburg and Gettysburg railway has contracted with the Chambersburg Auto Company for a seventeen passenger White truck to run between Caledonia and Gettysburg next summer. An early delivery of the truck is promised. The car will come close to being a trolley. It will seat 18 people in rattan seats on either side of an aisle and will have ample power to climb the mountain with a full load.

EASTER SUNDAY IN GETTYSBURG

Churches Observe the Day with Appropriate Exercises. Over One Hundred Joined St. James. Saturday's Egg Hunt.

Gettysburg's observance of Easter in its religious services and other features was carried out this year even more generally than ever before and the day's real significance was the theme in all the churches of the town. At many of the churches Eastertide is taken for the reception of new members and a large number were added to the rolls of Gettysburg's congregations this year. Sunday witnessed the reception of 103 new members at St. James Lutheran church in the morning, this number being by far the largest of any congregation in town. Others received additions from the confirmation classes, by letter from other churches and by restoration.

Easter flowers and plants were used in the decorations in the various houses of worship and practically every one of the Sunday Schools held a service appropriate to the day. Exercises, provided by the various boards representing the different lines of church activity, were used in most instances while in the Reformed church a cantata was rendered at the evening hour.

The tradition about the Easter rabbit was carried out in many homes of the town for the benefit of the little ones and many were made happy by the brightly colored eggs, the candy rabbits and all the other things that have always gone with the complete observance of the day. Saturday afternoon a large number of children participated in the egg hunt provided by members of the Presbyterian church on East Cemetery Hill and all spent a happy hour searching among leaves for the prettily colored eggs. The affair was so enjoyable that the suggestion was advanced that in succeeding years it be made a town event and that all the young children of Gettysburg be permitted to take part. It could very readily be made a pleasant feature of the town's Easter observance.

Cold winds kept in-doors the Easter promenaders this year and the usual body of Spring fashions was almost totally absent, people continuing to wear their winter garments, with the possible exception of spring hats which appeared in a variety of shapes and colors.

Easter is now more of a home-coming day than in the past and many of the homes of town had members of the family here for the day. Other visitors in town were numerous and Gettysburg's "keeping" of the day was fully as general as in past years.

WANT BETTER TRAIN SERVICE

"There are unmistakable signs that the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company is awakened to the fact that its Gettysburg and Harrisburg branch might be developed into an important passenger line as well as a profitable freight road," according to the Harrisburg Telegraph, which continues,

"All indications are that a little encouragement from the leading merchants and leading citizens of Harrisburg and the various communities between Carlisle Junction and Gettysburg is all that would be necessary to induce the company to try out a service between the Capital and the battlefield town that would divert to us business which, has been going to Baltimore heretofore."

"One additional train each way a day, or even a re-arrangement of the trains now running, would inevitably establish relations between Harrisburg and Gettysburg such as have never existed before and create a traffic which has not been allowed to grow."

"We must make it possible for the shopper to leave home after breakfast and get back before supper if we are to make a regular customer of him. The Gettysburgers now have to come down the night before and go home at noon, or he may start before dinner and return after nine o'clock in the evening. These are not the facilities that attract suburban patrons."

"The Reading Company is spending thousands of dollars on the improvement of the Gettysburg and Harrisburg roadway between Carlisle Junction—the point where Shippensburg trains branch off—and Gettysburg. It has been compelled to make costly preparations for the re-union of the Blue and Gray next July. It could test a new schedule now, or in a month or two from now, at little expense and, of course, it is to the advantage of the Reading to make its improvements pay the largest possible dividends."

"We have strong hopes that somebody with a vision, determination, civic enterprise and, perhaps, a little selfish interest, will take up the matter and push it through to success before our golden opportunity is gone."

FARMERS NOT KEEN

For Expert Advice. Believe Experience is the Best Teacher.

More than forty per cent. of all the farmers interviewed by government representatives believe that experience is the only way to learn how to farm. This percentage told agents recently sent out by the Department of Agriculture that they took no stock in farmers' institutes, demonstration agents, farm papers or Department of Agriculture publications as aids in helping to make the soil more productive.

Starting on motorcycles or on foot four department agents traveled through thirteen states, visiting every farmer along the way and asking questions. This inquiry revealed the fact that of the farmers who got Department of Agriculture bulletins, 84 per cent. read them and 48 per cent. followed the suggestions contained therein. Of those who attended farmers' institutes, it was learned that 54 per cent. practiced the methods advocated there.

SEASON AMOUNTS TO $400,000.00

Stock and Machinery Worth almost Half a Million Sold at Public Sales in Adams County the during Season now Closing.

Stock and machinery to the amount of about $400,000 have changed hands in Adams county since the opening of the spring sale season early in February. The season comes to a close this week.

There have been over two hundred sales this year and the average amount was almost $2000 each. Some were small affairs and netted less than $1000 but these were few and far between and the average was more than made up by the better sales some of which totaled more than $3000, several were over $4000 and one or two passed the $5000 mark.

Prices this year have been fine and probably never before has the general run of prices been so good. It is claimed that horses may have fallen off some, but it is said prices on cattle have advanced wonderfully over other years.

Good horses may be said to be bringing around the $200 mark, and sales have been made at $225, on up to $260 and probably a sale or two has been made around the $300 mark. These prices are for farm animals.

Cows during this sale season have been bringing any place from $85 per head down. In this county just now there seems to be a desire for Holsteins, and cows with Holstein blood in them have been bringing from $70 to $85. Common cows have also been selling very well. Other stock, such as pigs, sheep, etc., have also been bringing good prices.

The prices received for farming machinery have been about the average. Farm machinery depreciates rapidly with use, and while, when offered for sale it may be good, yet the average person starting a farm prefers to buy new machinery rather than to pay half price for machinery which has been used for a year or more. In some cases fair prices are received for machinery, but these cases are the exception.

The season just starting promises to be a good one for the farmer, because of the excellent winter. The wheat crop promises well, and excellent stands of grass have been secured, and unless there should be an unusual drought between now and harvest time, these two crops will be large.

PROTECTS BLACKBIRDS

Governor Tener Signs Bill Prohibiting the Killing of Blackbirds.

The blackbird is now protected by the law in Pennsylvania. Governor Tener on Saturday signed the bill placing the blackbird, the kill-deer plover and the turtle dove on the list of birds which it is unlawful to kill, and fixing the penalty for violation at $19 fine for each bird killed. The bill contains a proviso that blackbirds may be killed by owners of property whereon they may be caught destroying eggs or young of other birds, and grain, fruit or berries.

The bill was advocated by the State Game Commission because of the value of the three birds as insect destroyers, observation having shown that they are useful to farmers.

NEW PARCEL STAMPS

The design of a new and smaller parcel post stamp to replace those now in use has been approved by Postmaster General Burleson. Numerous complaints that the present stamp all denominations of which are the same color, is hard to distinguish as to value and easily "raised", caused the change. The new design will possess no artistic merit, but bear only a large numeral. The various denominations will be in different colors. Approximately $50,000 yearly will be saved by the smaller stamps, it is estimated.

EXTRA SESSION TO LAST LONG

General Legislation May Be Taken Up.

THE INCOME TAX PROBLEM

The Amount of Exemption, the Method of Collection and the Rate Are Proving a Puzzle.

Washington, March 24.—Democrats expressed the view that the extra session of congress would be a prolonged affair.

This was on the assumption that President Wilson would recommend to congress consideration of the currency question as well as perhaps other matters of pressing importance insofar as their discussion would not interfere with the right of way of tariff revision.

The president has indicated within the past day or two that he will urge other needed legislation when the tariff is out of the way. Consideration of currency and other questions might carry the session well into the autumn.

Democratic Leader Underwood is known to believe that the tariff would be disposed of in the house by May 1 and by both houses by July 1. Speaker Clark said that if only the tariff were taken up congress could adjourn by the middle of August, while other leaders predicted that tariff revision would be ready for the presidential approval by Aug. 1.

"If the president should send in a message recommending action on other important matters other than the tariff," said the speaker, "I have no doubt that congress would take up these matters. A good many members of the house want to go right into general legislation. A good many other members believe that the extra session should be confined to the tariff. Of the three special sessions, called to revise the tariff, in which I have served, the work was confined largely to the tariff, barring such routine matters as naturally come up."

The big problem with which the house ways and means committee majority now is wrestling is the income tax. Three points specially are being considered, the amount of income exemptions, the rate of tax, including questions of graduation or straight tax, and collection. The Wilson act of 1893, the last Democratic tariff, made $4000 the minimum taxable income, which some of the revisionists argued was really equal to $5000 or $6000 under present living cost conditions.

Some house leaders, while preferring a straight tax at the outset and to have the system develop gradually, would not oppose a conservative form of graduation. Others favor a graduated tax, increasing heavily on large incomes. The committee majority is working with a "dummy" percentage rate and the final result will hinge on these calculations and on the report yet to be made on the probable revenue from the fourteen dutiable schedules. The question of collection source—whether from the employer instead of directly from the salaried man—is being carefully studied out.

The maximum and minimum provision of the bill, it is said, probably will be radically changed, perhaps with a reversing of the so-called "big stick" policy by making the conventional, or regular tariff rates, the maximum to meet discriminating conditions in any foreign country. The Cuban reciprocity treaty of Dec. 11, 1902, allowing 20 per cent reduction on imports from Cuba from the regular tariff rates, probably will be maintained by a reiteration of the declaration that nothing in the new tariff shall be construed to abrogate the treaty. Some substantial changes in the Philippine tariff are likely.

MAD MAN CAPTURED

Paris Police Make Use of New Asphyxiating Bombs.
Paris, March 24.—A weapon for fire asphyxiating bombs, devised after a recent siege of automobile bandits at the households, was used for the first time in the capture of a colored man who had become suddenly mad and ran amuck in the Auteuil quarter, threatening every one he met with a loaded revolver.

Detectives chased the man from room to room in a house where he had taken refuge, firing gas bombs as they went. The fugitive was finally cornered on the roof in a state of semi-asphyxiation. He was quite powerless and was transferred to a hospital.

Find Hunter Dead in Boat.

Harpwell, Me., March 24.—Hanging lifeless over the side of a dory, with one foot caught under the seat, the body of Frank S. McLaren, aged fifty-two years, was found off Basin Point, in Yarmouth Bay, Edward S. Skilling, aged, thirty, who left with McLaren for a gunning camp, is missing. It is believed the man became bewildered in the fog and both were drowned. No marks of any violence were found on McLaren's body.

EATON CASE IN COURT

Plymouth, Mass., March 24.—Evidence in the case of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, who is charged with the murder of her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, by administering poison, will be presented before the grand jury, which will meet in special session here today.

The jury will determine whether the widow of the admiral shall be indicted or allowed her liberty. More than twenty-five witnesses are expected to appear before the grand jury. Those who have been summoned include neighbors of the Eaton family in the town or Norwell and county authorities, as well as others who have been concerned in the investigation.

As indicated at the time of the arrest of Mrs. Eaton, some of those conversant with the case believe a lunacy commission may be appointed to examine her.

FOUR PERISH IN BURNING HOME

Mystery Surrounds Blaze in N. J. Jersey Town.

Williamstown, N. J., March 24.—Four persons were burned to death between 2 and 3 o'clock Sunday morning in a little frame house on the outskirts of this town.

They were Mr. and Mrs. Wharton, their daughter and John Hemphill. The house, which is just outside of Williamstown, had been unoccupied. The four were there Saturday night and were found burned to death Sunday. The flames were seen, but they spread so rapidly that nothing could be done.

Mystery surrounds the origin of the fire. An assistant in the office of Coroner Backs gave the names of the dead persons.

Loses Needle-Pierced Leg.

Sharon, Pa., March 24.—When Melvina Morford, now grown to womanhood, was a child, she stepped on a packet of needles and a dozen or more entered her foot. Three years ago surgeons began taking pieces of steel from her muscles, the needles having "traveled." Saturday it became necessary, in an effort to save her life, to amputate the leg, blood poison from the needles having developed.

Rolling Mill to Resume.

Columbia, Pa., March 24.—The East End rolling mill of the Susquehanna Iron company, which has been idle for three years, will resume operations on April 7. Large consignments of iron, coal and other material are being received, while a large force of men is cleaning up the premises. Two hundred men will be employed.

ALL BLANKETY BLANK.

It is December. The new year is quickly drawing nigh, and Mr. Blank sits by his desk making his pen fly.

Why does he write so furiously? Does he fear dissolution? Why, no—ah—ah—he's getting up his New Year's resolution.

There, Mrs. Blank is writing too! She just has written down, "I promise not to scold you, dear, nor all the twelve months 'round."

Yes, it is lovely, and we hope both to their vows keep true; that they may be sweet, lovely doves And ever bill and coo.

It's evening, January first. The pledges are both busted. She started in to heckup him. Now both are mad, disgusted.

Oh, no, don't say, "What silly folks!" My, no, don't say, "It's rank!" Remember from the first to last The whole blame thing was Blank. C. M. BARNITZ.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEY?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles. A Gettysburg Citizen Gives a Valuable Hint.

Many people never suspect their kidneys. If suffering from a lame, weak or aching back they think that it is only a muscular weakness; when urinary trouble sets in they think it will soon correct itself. And so it is with all the other symptoms of kidney disorders. That is where danger often lies. You should realize that these troubles often lead to dropsy or Bright's disease. An effective remedy for weak or diseased kidneys is Doan's Kidney Pills. Read the experience of a resident of Gettysburg who has tested Doan's.

Charles Wilson, farmer, R. F. D. No. 5, Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I have used several boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and have found them satisfactory for kidney complaint. I had sharp twinges across the small of my back and in my sides. By using Doan's Kidney Pills in time I was rid of these troubles. I was rid of these troubles. I strongly recommend this preparation. MORE OUT-DOOR LIVING

And Death Rate Will Be Lowered. Statistics prove that the death rate is very much greater in the winter months than in summer, and that the lack of fresh air is largely responsible for this condition.

If the system becomes run-down, blood thin and watery, circulation poor, no appetite, don't dose with drugs, but take our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol, not a patent medicine, as everything in it is named on every package and if it does not give you a hearty appetite, enrich the blood and create strength, we will return your money; that shows our faith in Vinol.

A case has just come to our attention from Albany, N. Y. Mrs. H. Hartman says: "I was in a run-down condition for about five years until this spring, when I learned what a good tonic and strengthener Vinol is. It certainly the best tonic I have ever used and it has done wonders for me." Try a bottle of Vinol, on our guarantee. The People's Drug Store, Gettysburg, Pa.

Game of Colors.
"Who's knocking at the door?"
"The Angel with the Golden Star."
"What do you want?"
"Blue." (Or any color.)
The "good angel" names a color. If it is one represented the angel takes the child, but if unsuccessful must retire, while the "bad angel," or the "angel with the pitchfork," comes forward and makes a similar demand.

EASTER PARADE AT ATLANTIC CITY

A RIOT OF COLOR AND LIGHT

One, a living, pulsing sea of human life, running here from every city in the east, vied with the other, old ocean, which, silvered by a cloudless sky, entered into the spirit of Easter day and rolled and tumbled with delight.

But the human sea of color took the palm. Nature was lost before the tailor's art. For the brighter the sun shone the brighter flamed the gowns of blue, scarlet and other colors. More than 200,000 persons paraded the boardwalk during the day.

But Atlantic City made history of another case. The town was dry; absolutely dry. The tide, as was threatened down so tight that it couldn't be raised an inch. Of course thirsty souls made an effort, but the aforesaid tide couldn't be pried off with any influence.

Overcoats and wraps were worn with comfort and merrily and heresort basked in a warm flood of sun light, such as might crown a midsummer day.

Dance Fashion marshaled her bat talions early. The sun had scarcely warmed the boards before the pat-pat of smartly shod feet was heard from Chelsea to the Inlet. Soon this pat-pat grew to the magnitude of an army's marching tread and then was seen a parade of color which London's row and the Parisian boulevards might try to equal.

Color! It flamed and blazed for miles along the seashore; it became a personified thing that one saw at every turn and angle, in solid shades and happy combinations; generally such combinations that a painter might envy in a masterpiece.

Undoubtedly the display was finer this year than ever before, for the simple reason that gowns a la mode called for striking contrasts, especially the skirt slit in the side. In piquant style one could see here a gown of solid blue, with just a touch of flaming scarlet at the ankle, or in more brilliant green silk, with a dash of yellow that sparkled and paled at every turn.

But gold, red, blue, green, yellow pink and scarlet all were there, mingling and commingling in the throng, flashing here and there, paling and awakening with brilliant blushes, just as the humor of the visitor dictated that they promenade in line. True each individual beauty could not be seen to advantage all the time, yet all seemed satisfied in adding a little to the whole, just as each additional rose adds beauty to the bush.

Of course the silk hat was there, the English walking suit—and even a few, very few, monocles. Masculine nature, doomed to the conventional hat of black, wore silk yesterday during the afternoon promenade. But never men failed to impress; femininity held sway, whether dressed in ordinary coat and skirt or the more pretentious robes of silk. Chesters were there, with hat and stick, but merrily in the latest French creation put them to the wall in such robes as were never seen before or dreamed of. From the simple little school girl in plain white or blue, to the latest queen of fashion, the display was wonderful and admirable. Female beauty of face, figure and adornment rose to heights never reached before. The sight cannot be adequately described.

Anti-Suffragists Start a Campaign Against Votes For Women.

Washington, March 24.—The anti-suffragists, who were conspicuous in Washington just prior to the inauguration by their campaign of opposition to the suffrage "hikers" and the suffrage parade, announced another move to offset the woman suffrage movement.

Prizes of $100 each will be given to the city and country girls who submit the best essays demonstrating why women should not have the vote.

Three well known literary women will act as judges in the contest. Tiresias will be received by the essay committee of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, at 3 West Twenty-ninth street, New York.

Gave President an Easter Egg.
Washington, March 24.—President Wilson received an Easter egg yesterday despite the fact that he did not expect to. A little girl six years old handed it to him at the Eastern Presbyterian church, where he worshipped. Mr. Wilson has succeeded thus far in carrying out his resolution to worship unostentatiously and to avoid the crowds that have in the past gathered at the door of the church the president attended to witness his arrival and departure.

Restoring Rubber.

People using articles made of rubber that frequently lose their elasticity through oxidation may restore the material to its original condition by a simple process. Soak the part in a mixture of one part of ammonia to two parts water. This is said to be particularly well adapted to the restoring of rubber bands, rings and small tubing which are ready to be come dry and brittle.

KILLS WIFE WITH RAZOR ON STREET

Follows Her From Church to Cut Her Throat

Arlington, Mass., March 24.—Waiting outside St. Agnes' Catholic church until the conclusion of the 8 o'clock Easter mass, William A. McDonald, an engineering expert, shouldered his way through the 1500 parishioners and discovered his wife and three children, followed her for a block, and then cut her throat with a razor and attempted to kill the children.

Attracted by the screams of hundreds of frightened women, several of the men ran forward as McDonald tried to catch his oldest daughter by the throat, and James Kenne knocked the murderer down with a blow on the jaw and then jumped upon him, taking away the razor.

Mrs. McDonald was carried into the nearby office of a physician, but it was found that death had resulted almost instantly, the razor almost severing her head.

At the police station McDonald confessed that he had been planning the spectacular murder for many months and had intended to kill his wife and children at Christmas, but he was taken ill.

The couple formerly lived in Arlington, but two years ago, after repeated quarrels, he left her and has been living in Boston, sending monthly remittances for the support of his wife and children.

He said that his wife would not let him see the children as often as he wished, and that he decided to end it all, killing the children and himself as well as his wife. He had not been drinking, according to the police.

SEE PAPA KILL MAMMA

Tarentum, Pa., March 24.—Angered by a remark made by his wife, George Douthett, Jr., drew a revolver from his pocket and fired four bullets into her, killing her almost instantly.

He then turned the weapon upon himself and fired the remaining bullet in the chamber through his temple. It is likely that the self-inflicted wound will prove fatal.

The Douthetts were eating supper, when the husband and wife had some words. Without warning Douthett flashed a revolver and fired four shots in rapid order, and the wife rolled from her chair to the floor, dead; then the husband shot himself. The shooting was witnessed by two small sons.

Ex-President's Son Defeated.

SOFT COAL MINERS END LONG STRIKE

Agreement Reached in West Virginia Trouble.

MONTHS OF UGLY RIOTS

Paint Creek Miners and Militia Have Climaxed and Anarchy Has Ruled. Their Demands Granted.

Philadelphia, March 24.—As a result of a conference held in the Hotel Hanover between John P. White, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and T. J. Foster, of Scranton, representing the Paint Creek Coal Mining company, of West Virginia, the 4000 miners of that company, who have been on strike for ten months, are to be sent back to work, with practically all their demands satisfied.

According to Mr. White the principal points at issue concerned the granting of a semi-monthly pay, check weighmen, payment on the basis of a ton of 2000 pounds and the right of the miners to organize.

Mr. Foster, on behalf of the West Virginia company, conceded these points. About 6000 men in the West Virginia fields are still on strike. They are those employed by the Cabin Creek Consolidated Coal Mining company.

Upon the heels of the announcement of a settlement of the Paint Creek trouble, Mr. White received word from West Virginia that Governor Hatfield had released twenty-four men who had been arrested and held by the military authorities.

Mr. Foster came to Philadelphia to meet the president of the miners' union. According to Mr. White, he tendered the company's proposition and it was accepted. Mr. White will leave for West Virginia to confer with the miners' representatives in the strike districts and to advise upon legal action, which, he says, will be carried through the supreme court of the United States to obtain for the miners the right to organize. He expects also to arrange a meeting between Governor Hatfield and miners' and operators' representatives for the purpose of making a definite settlement of the difficulties between employers and employees in all parts of the state.

The coal strike embraces both Paint and Cabin Creeks. While fewer men have been on strike in the Paint Creek section, most of the violence connected with the mine trouble has occurred on that district. In the Cabin Creek district a majority of the miners, outnumbering the Paint Creek men two to one, struck in sympathy.

It is believed, with the miners of Paint Creek satisfied, that there will be a speedy settlement of the mine difficulty throughout all of Kanawha county.

The present strike had its inception April 1, 1912. Since that time there have been scores of riots and considerable bloodshed. Soon after the strike was called Governor Glasscock declared martial law. As the troops invaded the strike zone there developed practically a condition of anarchy. Bands of men traveled ahead of the soldiers, shooting up towns as they went. Soon the entire militia of the state took the field. After a time quiet was restored and the troops were withdrawn. Within a short time Governor Glasscock for the second time declared martial law.

The troops remained in the strike field for months. Gradually they were withdrawn until all had been ordered home. However, the second martial law proclamation was not lifted. A few months ago miners and deputies engaged in a battle. Over a score of persons are reported to have been killed but definite information as to fatalities has never been available.

NEW PARCEL POST STAMPS

Washington, March 24.—The design of a new and smaller parcel post stamp to replace those now in use was approved by Postmaster General Burleson.

Numerous complaints that the present stamp, all denominations of which are the same color, is hard to distinguish as to value and easily "raised," caused the change.

The new design will possess no artistic merit, but bear only a large numeral. The various denominations will be in different colors. Approximately $50,000 yearly will be saved by the smaller stamps, it is estimated.

Cambridge, Mass., March 24.—Dr. Charles W. Eliot in an interview said: "It is true that I have declined the position of British ambassador. My years had nothing whatever to do with my refusal to serve abroad." He said with regard to his reasons for declining that these should be made public at Washington.

BIG ELK HANGS HIMSELF

Altoona, Pa., March 24.—"Bad Bill," monarch of the elk herd kept by John Kazmaier at his Sylvan Hills country seat, is no more.

The big fellow's death came about in a strange way. He hanged himself, but his owner is inclined to think it was not a case of suicide, but rather due to "Bill's" propensity to charge something.

A heavy log chain was hanging from a tree in that part of the preserve maintained for the elk, and the end of the chain reached to within five feet of the ground.

Some time during the night "Bill" plunged headlong into what proved to be his noose. His antlers, which he could have shed on the 6th of next month, became entangled in the chain, and in his desperate struggle to free himself from the snare he twisted upward until his hoofs were lifted clear of the ground. There he hung until next day, when the keeper found him.

Block and tackle were procured to lower his 1000 pounds to the ground. With something of his old fire, "Bill" rose on his hind legs and sprang forward, ran twenty feet, wobbled and toppled over.

TAFT GIVES NEGROES HEART TO HEART TALK

Attends Colored Baptist Church in Augusta, Ga.

The Tabernacle is a negro church, and Dr. C. T. Walker, the eminent negro minister, is its pastor. The purpose of the meeting was to raise funds for an institutional church which Dr. Walker expects to build. Quite a large sum was raised.

Mr. Taft gave the negroes a heart to heart talk. He complimented them upon the wonderful progress they have made since the time that they were brought over from Africa in an uncivilized state, and said that while every one now condemns slavery, still because of slavery, as horrible as was the plan of tearing the negroes away from their native country and bringing them to America as slaves, had not this been done the negro race could not have advanced as rapidly as it has.

Mr. Taft said that he could understand how the people of the south felt when it was proposed to free their slaves, because slavery was an established institution which was founded by them in their state constitutions, and he paid a splendid tribute to the negro slaves who stayed at home and looked after the welfare of their masters' families while the war was in progress.

"The white people of the south are negroes' real friends," said Mr. Taft, "and while we of the north can aid you in every way that we can, still the white people of the south are your devoted friends and among whom the majority of you live and have your being."
Mr. Taft ridiculed the idea of deporting the negro to Africa or anywhere else, and said that he was doing all right where he is. Discussing happiness, Mr. Taft said that the negro race is one of the happiest and most cheerful of all races.

WILL CUT FARM-FOOD COST

Federal Division of Markets Expected to Lop Off Excess Profits.

Washington, March 24.—Plans for organization of the division of markets, which, under the secretary of agriculture, is to try to discover methods for more economical marketing of food products, are being made by a joint committee of chiefs of various divisions in the department of agriculture.

Within the next few weeks the new division, for which congress provided $50,000, will be able to begin its investigation.

Several officials expressed the opinion that the information which they will be able later on to disseminate will prevent much duplication in cost of getting food from the producer to the consumer.

WOULD MUZZLE CATS

Montclair, N. J., Woman Says Noise Made by Felines is a Nuisance.

Montclair, N. J., March 24.—Mrs. Frances E. Lord, of 170 Valley road has asked Mayor Hinck to issue an edict requiring that all the cats in the town be muzzled.

Mrs. Lord says that the noise made by the cats is a nuisance. In her letter, however, she does not say how muzzles will stop their outcries, and Mayor Hinck does not think that the scheme is practical unless some inventor comes forward with a muzzle having a silencer attached.

Dr. Elizabeth Marcellis has objected to the muzzling of dogs and will test the legality of the ordinance.

Ask Panama For Canal Land.

Panama, March 24.—The isthmian canal commission has requested the Panama government to recognize officially, under the treaty, the right of the United States to use, occupy and control certain islands and peninsulas in the Gatun lake area, outside the zone limits.

The Stranger

A Story of Medieval Times

By EMMA STURGIS

In those feudal days, when every eminence was crowned with a castle, there were two hills not far apart, on each of which a baron had built one of these fortresses and lived in sight of each other. At first they were friends, but one day Sir Herman rode over to Sir Wilhelm's castle and asked for the hand of the latter's daughter, Wilhelmmina, for his son, Frederick. Sir Wilhelm loved his daughter dearly and had no wish for her to leave him, so he referred the matter to her. She had met Frederick while hawking and found him an ill-favored young man, got at all to her liking, so she declined the honor offered her.

Sir Herman rode angrily back to his castle and informed his son that the offer had been declined, and the young man, who was of a vengeful disposition, made a vow that he would either marry Wilhelmmina or destroy her father's castle. And when he got her he would let her understand that no maiden could refuse him with impunity.

From that time forward Sir Herman and his son were constantly on the lookout for a cause for picking a quarrel with Sir Wilhelm. In those days the barons lived by plundering travelers, and both these noblemen supported themselves and their retainers in that way. One dark night, when young Frederick was lying in wait for some merchants who were expected to pass through the valley between his father's and Sir Wilhelm's castles, Sir Wilhelm, who was looking for the same plunder, passed along the road with a number of men at arms.

Now, Frederick knew who was riding by, but, pretending that he thought them merchants, fell upon them suddenly. A fierce fight ensued, and Sir Wilhelm's force, having been surprised, was routed, with the loss of several men, while Frederick's escaped with a few wounds.

Sir Wilhelm knew that this was a mere pretext and that he must fight for having declined to give his daughter to wife to the man who had attacked him. So he strengthened his castle, rebuilt some of the ramparts, laid in an increased stock of arms and awaited the next move of his enemy. It came very soon. Sir Wilhelm robbed a party of travelers, and the next day Sir Herman sent him word that they had been plundered on his own domain and demanded the goods that had been taken. Sir Wilhelm sent back word that if his neighbor thought he was entitled to the property he had better come and take it. Meanwhile Sir Herman had been preparing for the approaching fight and was ready for it. His son Frederick claimed the leadership, and his father gave it to him.

There is a principle of war that the advantage is with the attacking party. This is because the impetus is on their side, while their enemies are on the defensive. At any rate Frederick not only besieged the castle, but led one attack after another against it, making a breach here and a hole there, killing off men who could not be replaced, while the stock of provisions within the walls was constantly growing less. And so it came about that Sir Wilhelm saw that the end of the struggle must soon come with the capture of his castle. He sent a messenger to know what sum his enemy would ask to retire and leave him in peace. Frederick replied that the only price he asked was the hand of the Lady Wilhelmmina. This was a sad blow to the besieged. Wilhelmmina would rather die than give herself to the man she hated, but she could not bear to bring destruction on her father and his retainers.

Now, among the travelers who had been robbed was a young man who had been fighting in the service of the king of France against the English. Hearing the sound of war, he sent word from the cell in which he was confined and held for ransom, requesting that he be released and be permitted to take part in the defense. When all hope was gone Sir Wilhelm sent for him. The young man proposed to lead a sortie against the enemy and was permitted to do so.

Just before dawn one morning he fell upon them so furiously and kept up the fight so vigorously that within a few hours he had them in full retreat. Catching sight of Frederick endeavoring to rally his men, the stranger drove his horse straight at him and felled him with a battle-axe. The savior never arose from his fall, and the attack was not renewed.

The stranger had been badly wounded, but did not know it till the end of the struggle, when he fainted from loss of blood. When he came to himself he was lying in a chamber of the castle, and a young girl was bending over him. She nursed him, dressing his wounds herself and giving him every attention as the savior of the castle. He asked her what had occasioned the war, and she told him how marriage was proposed for the Lady Wilhelmmina and rejected.

When the stranger recovered the baron asked him what boon he could confer upon him as repayment for his services. The hero replied that if the young girl who had nursed him didn't object he would like her given him to wife.

"What! My daughter?"
"Your daughter? No; my nurse."
"Your nurse does not object," said Wilhelmmina, entering the room. "One who has saved me from a brute shall be repaid, since he so chooses, by what that brute lost."

PRECIOUS MUGS.

In the government assay office on Wall street, New York, there is a corner that looks very much like a mug rack in a country barber shop, where every customer has his individual mug highly decorated in gilt letters.

On this rack are perhaps fifty crucibles for melting down gold. The crucibles are decorated with crude initials and numerals and are the property of the biggest gold mining corporations in North and South America.

The reason for the individual mugs is that the clay of crucibles takes up a considerable quantity of gold in the process of smelting which otherwise would be lost to the customer bringing the gold to the government to be refined. After two or three smeltings the clay is saturated and takes up no more gold. When it is finally succeeded by a new crucible it is returned to the customer to be broken up for its hidden gold.

Mugs that are used for melting down random lots of gold are carefully preserved by the government refiners and sold. Uncle Sam pockets the proceeds. As in these random lots there is no way of computing to what amount each of perhaps twenty customers may be entitled. It is only the smelting concern that sells the government enough gold at one time to monopolize a single melting that obtains the right to a mug on the rack. — New York Tribune

THE HUMAN DRUG STORE.

There is a man you likely know. His name is Mr. Don't. Don't. He has so many ailments.

That you'd think there was no hope. His liver and his kidneys. And his stomach and his heart. He thinks are so diseased.

That they soon will fall apart. It's a cancer; it's a tumor; Oh, it must be Bright's disease! Sure, it's tuberculosis.

Every time he has to sneeze. His appendix—maybe that's it; Apoplexy—it's a coming. So he runs off to the drug store.

Keeps the doctor's phone a-humming. Morning, he takes digitalis; Noon, a dose of calomel; Then at night some castor oil, Aconite and nux and bell.

Cut it, Dope! Go get a wood saw. Lay some hickory on the buck. Make that saw go like blue blazes. And you'll have much better luck.

Throw that dope on to the junk pile. Chase away your visions drear. Eat plain grub and breathe pure ozone. And abjure highballs and beer.

THE DROPPING BOARD ESSENTIAL.

For the sake of sanitation and the saving of labor and valuable hen fertilizer the dropping board under the roost is a necessity to every well regulated henhouse.

It's only where John Bughouse is on the job that hen manure is allowed to pile up on the floor and hens roost over the festering mass. There it rots, freezes and thaws, poisons the air and affords breeding place for vermin and microbes. The hens walk in it, lay in it, dust in it, drag it here and there, scratch it out over the floor. It is DROPPING BOARD, ROOST, NESTS mixed with their feed. The result is disease among the flock, and the valuable fertilizer is wasted.

Such a filthy place is unpleasant for those who attend the flock and unfit to produce sweet eggs and pure meat.

The dropping board under the roost is so easily constructed that little time and skill are required. It occupies only the floor room required for the prop and may be so arranged as to be quickly removed. Thus the droppings may be easily and quickly scraped off and stored and land plaster or dry earth be thrown on the boards to absorb all moisture and kill all bad smells.

DON'TS.

Don't envy others. The same people may be envying your soft snap. If you're content to do your best, kind providence will do the rest and you and yours will be well blessed.

Don't use an old snot corncrib, the rat pantry and fat hen confectionery.

Don't let fruit rot under the trees that hogs and chickens will thrive on.

Don't paint a galvanized roof until the weather makes it rough enough to hold the paint.

Don't fail to sow a crop in that point try yard where the ground's foul. Win ter rye for winter picking.

Don't go back to the soil with the idea that agriculture is a snap and the same as it was fifty years ago. Such a hallucination spells ruin.

Don't preach conservation of our natural resources and allow your jaw power to run to waste.

Don't consider building a rooster the same as building a box. Some block heads do that and fall flat.

Don't guy the preacher because he dotes on chicken. Remember he is a prime poultry promoter and makes a market for your tough antediluvians.

Don't get crazy over silver cups. It's nice to win a prize or so, and silver cups have a pretty glow, but it's mon ey makes the fast mare go.

Two Poor Ones.

During one of Edwin Forrest's engagements in Boston a poor artist called several times to see the great actor at the old Winthrop House. Each time he brought a picture which he had painted. He finally left it with a note stating that he was in needy circumstances. Forrest read the note and took the wrapping from the picture. It proved to be a painting of himself as Spartacus. Forrest gazed upon it a moment and then ejaculated to the clerk: "Give him $10. If he is as poor as his picture he must be on the point of starvation."

OCEAN DERELICTS.

Floating Perils That Drift With Winds and Currents.

A MENACE TO EVERY VESSEL.

These Vampires of the Sea, Some of Them Wholly Submerged, Are Dreaded by All Mariners—Methods of Locating and Destroying Them.

Today, according to Popular Electricity, there are about 2,000 derelicts in the waters of the world—floating perils that go where wind and currents lead them. Every sea is made hazardous by their presence. They have crashed into ocean liners and into junks of the China sea. To them all vessels are alike—something to be destroyed. They crash against them in the dead of night, when inky blackness hides their coming. Wrecks themselves, they seem to strive to drag all others to their own fate.

So they go drifting on the seven seas. More particularly they seem to swarm eagerly in the gulf stream.

From Cape Hatteras reaching north to the Grand Banks of Newfoundland is the "graveyard of the Atlantic." It is a rolling waste where many ships are buried. It is a place where derelicts borne by the sweep of the gulf stream and the countercurrent of the Labrador current dart about like angry sharks, eager to fasten their maws on the hull of some ship.

In the hydrographic office at some seaport the wireless is sounding. A message is coming through the void. It is a message of peril coming from a steamship. It warns that a derelict has been sighted squarely in the path of ocean travel. For days the men at the station have been waiting for word of this derelict. Its position on the chart that all hydrographic offices keep has not moved for a week. They have lost track of it. Its driftings are as a mystery. The station men have been unable to wire back over the seas warning captains of its whereabouts. Any moment they may hear that it has attacked and wrecked.

But now the derelict has come into the light. The Baltic has sighted it and sent a warning humming over the seas. Now the men at the station are quick to act. At a word from their chief they relay the message to the commander of the revenue cutter Seneca, lying by. The Seneca has been waiting for this message—waiting for the derelict's whereabouts to be revealed. And now, knowing them, it gets up steam and sails forth, a purger of the seas, on destruction bent.

Of derelicts there are two kinds—those that float observed and those that float unobserved. Most people imagine that wrecked ships are ultimately driven ashore and that vessels reported sinking at the time of abandonment go down soon after. That is not true. Abandoned ships breed vampires of the deep. For months they float. Water-logged, half sunken, pitched and torn by storm, they yet somehow seem to survive. They will live in gales that send the stanchest vessels to the bottom. Only time can destroy them—that is, unless electricity takes a hand.

Too heavy to rise to the surface and yet not water soaked enough to sink to the bottom and remain there, they crawl along just under the riding swells. Their abiding place is nowhere. From the untraveled tracks of the seas they may be carried by a storm directly in the path of navigation. Whither they go no word goes before them. They descend unobserved, quietly, grimly. Not until they have struck is their presence known. Then they take their toll. They destroy a ship, and from it another of their kind is made. It is their way of multiplying and spreading the breed. That is why it is so important that they be destroyed.

But now the Seneca has steamed into the province of the derelict. High in the mast the lookout is casting his eyes on all sides. If he is not alert the derelict may attack those on board the Seneca. Self preservation is strong in a vampire.

But now the tip of a submerged mass rises above a distant swell. Caught in a sudden pitch of the sea, the derelict has revealed itself. From the lookout's nest the cry sounds. The speed of the Seneca is reduced. It moves slowly toward its quarry. And now the work of harnessing electricity for the destruction it must do begins. From the magazines are brought mines charged with sixty pound burdens of gun-cotton. From the storehouses are brought insulated electric cables and a hand magnet. A small boat is lowered, and the mines are taken on board. Then the boat rides over the sea toward the derelict, a risky ride if the swells are running high.

And the next comes the work of placing the mines where they will create the greatest explosions. If the wreck is submerged the task is more difficult. More mines must be used. Exquisite care must be employed in their placing. Finally the explosive charges are connected by means of the insulated electric cables, and the wrecking party draws off to a safe distance. The man with the hand magnet provides the necessary current, the detonators of fulminate of mercury explode, the primers of dry gun-cotton are dealt a harsh blow, the explosion is sufficient to loosen all the heavy powers of the masses of wet gun-cotton, and then the derelict flies apart, its back broken, its sides flying through the air, a scraping and rending of planks, the sudden splash as they hit the water again—the sound of a vampire dying.
